sometimes, evidence was not handled properly, breath tests were not calibrated correctly, or your blood alcohol concentration rose between the time you were driving and the time of your testing.

the new results, which appear to contradict the basis for the FDA’s warning, present clinicians with a conundrum.

is there anyone else having identical rss problems? anyone who knows the solution will you kindly respond? thanx