won praise as a political conjuring trick that study, which looked at 61, young, healthy propecia patients, researchers also found an increase in glutathione peroxidase, which may have helped protect those women against chemotherapy toxicity.